Test Prep Tuesday Answers

• 10/15:

Which carbanion is the most stable?

Solution:

Carbanion stability is opposite that of carbocation stability. For carbanions: methyl > 1° > 2° > 3°. Choice C is a 1° carbanion, hence the most stable.

[Alkyl groups donate electrons, hence 3° would have 3 groups donating electrons; this would increase the negative charge and destabilize the specie].
